Hengeler Mueller sets new standards in career development and training

The career for associates of Hengeler Mueller has been redesigned. Hengeler Mueller will upgrade its career and training program by an integrated degree program in cooperation with the University of St. Gallen, further improve the individual career development, and offer new opportunities to accommodate job and family balance. The career path for new associates will now lead to a decision on partner election after six years.

Core element of the new career and training program is a unique partnership with the Executive School of Management, Technology and Law of the University of St. Gallen. Associates of Hengeler Mueller will have the opportunity to obtain a "certificate" after three years and a "diploma" after five years. During these five years associates can achieve approximately fifty percent of the credits necessary for a paneuropean Executive MBA degree. The long existing and highly successful "Hengeler Mueller Akademie" with lecturers who are nationally and internationally leading in their respective fields will be integrated into the new degree program. With this comprehensive program, Hengeler Mueller is developing not only legal but also profound business and financial knowledge as well as leadership and negotiation skills of its associates.

A further element is the professional support of each associate's individual career development. A new group "Professional Development" led by Julia Reiche has already been established. In collaboration with the responsible partners, she will further advance the associates' individual career development at Hengeler Mueller.

In addition, Hengeler Mueller is enhancing its part-time program. Hengeler Mueller will further accommodate associates' practical needs for balancing job and family by supporting child care.
