Frederic advises companies and investors on all aspects of public law, in particular on product and motor vehicle law including modern mobility concepts and autonomous driving, European administrative law and the law of regulated industries, in particular energy law. In addition, he advises on fiscal law, foreign trade law and data protection law.

He advises his clients on complex regulatory issues relating to their products and services and supports them in corporate transactions, IPOs and internal investigations. He has notable experience in the introduction of new compliance structures, for example in the area of technical compliance in the automotive supply industry. He also represents his clients before German and European regulatory authorities and courts, in particular in complex proceedings at the interface between national and European administrative law.

His clients include manufacturers and suppliers of the automotive and mobility industries, banks and companies in the energy sector.
